THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L. Jr.

RANDOM REMARKS ON THE NEVADA CITY SCENE

Just after lunch every day, in the neighborhood of Pioneers Park, you see the small boy population of the community heading for the swimming pool. They come in ones and two and threes and in groups of up to half a dozen. They wear tennis shoes and threadbare jeans and skivvy shirts and each one clutches in a bony little hand his swimming trunks. Most of them don't bother with towels. Sunshine's a good enough towel for them.

Their hair is bleached by the sun and their skin looks like fine, shiny brown leather. The way they troop over the hills and roads, paths and byways toward that pool reminds you of little iron shavings attracted by a powerful magnet. And they're about nine boys to one little girl. Where are the girls? Tied to their mother's apron strings?

At the pool the amount of energy burnt up by these 6 to 15 year old human jumping jacks is enough, I'm sure to do a $20,000 job of landscaping the park, if it could only be harnessed for one summer. But I like it better the way it is, unharnessed. There's not an ounce of fat on the kids. Their muscles are hard, thin and taut as steel springs. To run, jump, dive, swim, tag and hoot and holler for three or four solid hours doesn't wear them down at all. Lots of them hike three or four miles home after an extended vigorous session at the pool.

Bill Pohley, our seasoned and sundarkened life guard, is on the job every minute of the day—and he needs to be. With up to a couple of hundred little wild men churning the water into a froth, he's got to watch that the games of tag and water polo don't get out of hand. The concrete sides and deck of the pool are rough and leave a miserable gash if a kid slips and falls. Then now and then children so young they can't look out for themselves come in custody of older brothers and sisters, who become engrossed in playing with their chums and forget about the tiny wards. It's not the easiest job in the world, lifeguard at our pool, but Bill rules the roost with a firm but friendly hand.

Someone's living in the caretaker's house in the park now, apparently temporarily until October, when the city council figures to have money enough to hire a full-time workman to maintain the park in the style to which we'd like to become accustomed. I hope when they decide on a man, they'll pick some old-time Nevada City resident with a reputation for steadiness, handiness and industry, because there's going to be plenty to keep a man busy to get that park in the shape we want to see it. I know a first class candidate for the job. He's been a hard worker for thirteen years, I've known him, and as far as I know has lived, he and his grandfather and father before him, in Nevada City, since the time when the locality was known as Caldwell's Upper Store or Deer Creek Diggings. What's more he lives up on Prospect Hill where the e-Leete of the town live—That's a pun, son—and a lousy one, I'll admit.

Since Al Bates knocked the bumper off the rear end of my car, the world's most care-worn Nash, and he had the Miner's Foundry weld it like new again with stainless steel welding rod, and he and Irv Seaman bolted it back on it again, better than new, I'm putting a plaque on it (of purest bronze). The inscription will read: "This bumper was erected by the City Council of the City of Nevada, standing in quorum in front of 305 Broad Street, on a very hot day in July, assisted by a committee of two 12-inch crescent wrenches and a Stillson, or pipe, wrench."

An attractive lady just came into the office accompanied by the idea that the Nugget should reprint the book "Diary of a Forty-niner". This book, upon which the copyright expired long ago, is a bona-fide account of the adventures of an argonaut who spent a lot of wild times in this very neighborhood—yessirree, walked right down Broad Street and into the Last Chance Saloon, and wrote his memoirs before he sobered up.

WARREN SEEKS RENT CONTROLS

SACRAMENTO, July 25—Rents for housing accommodations in California should be controlled until the supply is in "normal balance" with the demand, Gov. Earl Warren declared this week.

A "great majority" of landlords, the governor said, "have acted with due regard for the welfare of others, but oppressive treatment by even a small percentage of them under present conditions could bring chaos bitterness and suffering."

His message to the legislature said in part:

"The housing shortage in California offers tenants no alternative to paying any rental that is demanded of them. There is no place for them to move. If they are evicted from their homes, they must land in the streets.

"An understanding state government cannot permit such conditions. The fear and uncertainty in the minds of tenants as well as the actual distress of those who are unjustly evicted must be relieved. Our responsibility as state officers compels us to see that our people are protected. If the federal government does not do it, we must do it.

"California is more sensitive to the housing shortage than any other state of the union. We must protect our people against the unfairness of some landlords and against the bidding for houses by some tenants.

"Either of these practices is inflationary. Whatever you do to exercise a fair and reasonable control over rentals and evictions during this period of congestion and housing shortage will contribute to the fight that must be made on every front against the spectre of inflation."

The governor recommended (1) temporary "freezing" all housing rentals and "preventing evictions except for statutory causes; (2) establishing a state agency "charged with the responsibility of making rent control effective by regulating and wherever necessary adjusting rents to do justice to both landlords and tenants."

"I presume", he told the legislature "that you do not welcome the idea of unceremoniously catapulting the state into a program of rent control which has been carried on by the federal government since 1942. I will be frank to say that I share that feeling. The federal government has undertaken the job. It should continue to shoulder the responsibility as long as it is necessary to protect the public, because it is a national by-product of war."

MENTAL SICKNESS IS NO DISGRACE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22—The provision in general hospitals for psychiatric patients would be a significant step forward in the treatment of mental disease says Dr. K. M. Bowman professor of psychiatry.

Bowman says that the commitment process in mental illness with an attendant idea that there is some special disgrace of stigma about such sickness is retarding treatment.

There is no more disgrace about being mentally sick than being physically sick. It is unfortunate that we have archaic methods of commitment which make commitment a legal process and which puts the poor patient in the status of an individual accused of a crime.

As long as we do that we are going to keep many people from going to hospitals and getting the mental care which they need, until after it is too late. That is why the task of putting mentally sick people in the general hospital without commitment procedures as is being done in many cases now throughout the country is one of the solutions to some of the difficulties.

Bowman says that generally speaking, state hospitals do not have enough funds to provide good care and mental patients would be better cared for in general hospitals.

U S EXPORTS 16 MILLION TONS OF FOOD IN YEAR

The United States exported more than 16 1-2 million long tons of food stuffs during the year which ended June 30, according to Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson's report to the president.

The great bulk of these shipments went to war devastated countries where starvation threatened.

The 400 million bushel "bread grain export commitment for the year was met by June 30. Wheat and flour exports, plus the corn and corn products shipped after May from stocks acquired under the corn bonus plan, reached a total of 401 million bushels.

Of the total bread grain exports, 5,556,000 tons were shipped from January 1 through June 30. In addition enough wheat, flour, corn and corn products were at ports on July 1 ready for ship loading to bring the total above the six million ton goal for the half-year period.

During June alone, our bread grain exports totaled about one and one half million tons—a record for a similar period.

OUR "YEAR OF GOLD"

California is approaching its centennial.

Ninety-eight years ago last Jan. 24, the cry of "Gold" echoed in the glades around Sutter's mill. A year later a trickle of people from the east had swollen to a flood—the greatest gold rush in history.

The Argonauts rolled in to start building a state which had been declared a part of the union three years before, when the Stars and Stripes was raised at Monterey—July 7, 1846.

One centennial is upon us, another not far distant. Californians, both old and new should note the one with due reverence and start at once to make positive plans for the other. The next three years appear as a period of preparation, of planning and prospect for the great "golden era of the Pacific basin' which stretches out before us beyond our centennial.

It is both fitting and proper that we should lay plans, through a representative active imaginative committee for a series of great events during our centennial year. One envisions a music festival, a display of art both historical and modern; a drama in keeping with the spirit of the rich gold country; an industrial show, a sports carnival and other events of a like nature for the state as a whole.

Supporting them should be spectacles in the carnival spirit to be provided by the cities and towns of the state—something going on every day somewhere all through the year 1949 to attract the attention of the nation and of the world and to cement anew in the spirit of friendship this people of a great state which grew by mirth and industry.

Now is not too early to start dreaming the dreams, to commence working out the necessary and practical plans. Two years will pass quickly. We should be well prepared long before Jan. 24, 1949—a fitting date since the month is that of the gold discovery, the year that the Forty-Niners—to start the program of events.—Contributed.

THE BAY AREA COUNCIL

Sixty communities in the San Francisco bay region are being given a big chance to see whether cooperation pays off, for the San Francisco bay area council is ready to go into action.

The council is dedicated to the idea that more can be accomplished by everyone pulling together than by a lot of individual, and individualistic effort with accompanying rivalry and bickering. It will work on the assumption, for example that an industrialist is more likely to locate his plant in a region where all the development forces are working for the common good than in one where each community is trying to promote its own interests at the expense of the others. The some holds true, the council believes, in the fields of agriculture, foreign trade and transportation and congressional influence.

The council has the support of and will work with existing agencies. It will speak in Washington as the voice of the entire area. It deserves the support of the whole area. And communities outside the bay region might do well to watch its progress.—Contributed.

SHRINE HOSTS TAKE OVER SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25—Its streets ablaze with flags and gigantic illuminated fezzes, San Francisco played host this week to the national victory convention of the Ancient Arabia Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

The actual convention was held July 23, 24 and 25 but the 25,000 Shriners and their families pouring in from all parts of the continental United States and from Hawaii took over the city a week earlier and fun was the order of the day.

Along with the convention went a glittering night spectacle, witnessed by an estimated 300,000 spectators, parade after parade by uniformed Shriners, an army air show over the city, a marine parade and regatta, a fiesta and mardi gras and a swimming meet.

The Shrine conclve was the second of three great 1946 San Francisco conventions. The first was that of the American Medical Association July 1-5. The third will be the American Legion Sept. 29-Oct. 4, expected to have an attendance of 100,000.

NORTH STATE FISHING $7,000,000 INDUSTRY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25—Commercial fishing in Northern California has reached the proportions of a $7,000,000 a year industry. The average yearly catch for the area totals approximately 320,000,000 lbs. Of this the San Francisco area averages 218,000,000 pounds, worth $3,700,000. The greatest value comes from the California sardine—$3,145,000.

These facts were revealed today by Victor Martin of the first annual Fishermen's Fiesta, as San Francisco's Fishermen's Wharf prepared for the big celebration which will be held July 27 and 28 marking the beginning of the 1946-47 sardine fishing season. The fiesta is expected to draw crowds not only from the bay region but many parts of central and northern California.

In important competitive shooting most shots have to stay within the X ring.

Auburn Airport Loses Balloon Transmitters

The weather observation station at the Auburn Airport since June 22nd has been using free balloons for checking temperature and humidity readings at high levels over the area.

These balloons which are released at approximately seven o'clock each evening, attain an altitude of between 60,000 and 70,000 feet. Each balloon is equipped with a miniature radio transmitter which emits signals at four different pressure levels and these signals are received and decoded by operators on the ground.

NEIL O'DONNELL ACTIVE IN GOLD MINING COUNCIL

Delegates from Randsburg on the south to Trinity County on the north with a splendid delegation from Nevada, attended the regular monthly meeting of Western Mining Council, Inc., at Quincy Plumas county, July 14. The board of directors met in the superior court room in the morning where the program for the general meeting was proposed and later submitted at a turkey dinner served at Hotel Quincy.

Free Gold Movement

O. H. Griggs, Placerville, the council's representative on the state wide committee now working on securing a free market for gold reported that he has been in touch with Neil O'Donnell of Grass Valley, chairman who states that aid of Bernard Baruch has been sought.

The latter has asked for much detailed information which is now being furnished. With it all has come the idea that forcing a gold operator to sell his product to the government at a loss is unconstitutional. With this in mind the council directors have decided on a test case and will contest the law which limits the amount of gold any person can hold to two ounces. Roscoe Wright (Death Valley Curley) Goldfield prospector and operator at the directors meeting agreed to be the guinea pig in testing the law. H. A. Savage Fresno attorney and president of the Tri-County Chapter will head the group of defense attorneys. Wright said he had just completed a tour of 3500 miles among mine operators and lease holders all of whom are very much dissatisfied with the way Washington is handling the matter and he believed that the entire west will back the test case..

Mines Still Tied Up In Bombing Ranges

Judge Cecil O. Wise or Randsburg president of the Kern Chapter, brought before the directors the information that mining ground held by the government in bombing ranges will not be released as of July 1, 1946 as was promised the time having been extended for at least another year. Wise and his associates as of July 1 started work on a property in the Inyo-Kern range that tests 1600 ounces of silver and $70 in gold to the ton but were ordered to shut down and remove their installations.

After hearing Wise the board voted to propose to the Public Lands Committee that it submit a bill that will provide that mining be continued on a free basis in all government reservations, parks, forests, power withdrawals, etc., and in all future withdrawals. The directors were fortified in their stand by a report on HR 6201 a bill by Helen Gahagan Douglas, to set aside all the redwood area of California in a Roosevelt memorial made by Wendell Robie of Auburn the council's public lands chairman.

Goodwin Reports on Mineral Queen Contest

J. H. Goodwin who handled the recent mineral queen contest for the Plumas chapter, reported the addition of 944 new council members and a total of 1000 new chapter members. Shortly after August 1 the winners in the contest Miss Bettie Brown of Taylorsville and Miss Eloise Freemyers of Chester, will be taken to Hollywood with stopovers at several of the larger cities en route. A number of Plumas gold nuggets will be presented to officials in the several cities. When the new members added by the contest are enrolled in the council the membership will be close to 5500. Without them Secretary Treasurer Paul Clayborne of Auburn reported membership of 4779 and a bank balance of $1363.

Before the meeting closed President J. P. Hall announced the appointment of Capt. John D. Hubbard as area vice president of Area No. 6 (Butte, Yuba and Sierra Counties) and also the nominating committee for the annual election which will be held by mail ballot. The committee is :Geo. R. Burris and O. H. Griggs of Placerville; J. H. Goodwin, Greenville; Lloyd A. Launer, Eureka; Chester Merriam, Dobbins; Arch Mecham, Santa Barbara; John W. Bergin, Weaverville; Les Child, Grants Pass; Fred V. Sapson, Barstow; Wendell Robie, Auburn; Clyde Terrell, Tonopah.

Next Meeting in Reno

J. P. Hart, Reno mining man, led a delegation from Nevada requesting that the council meet in Reno in September for the purpose of forming a chapter there, the request being approved by the directors. A meeting will also be held at Tonopah on the following day.

The meeting was closed by H. A. Savage of Fresno..

AUBREY DRURY WRITES ABOUT REDWOODS

Redwoods and the native flowers of the redwood region are featured in the new book, "Pacific Coast Ranges" in a chapter by Donald Culross Peattie, noted California nature writer. "'Redwoods are a whole world in themselves" he says, and they reach farther south than any other great forest formations of the northwest coast."

Of all the trees on the Pacific Coast, in his opinion the most world renowned are the redwoods — "a unique phenomenon among the wonders of the earth." Several photographic views of redwood groves are among the illustrations of the book.

The petrified forest near Mount St. Helena with its fallen redwoods turned to stone, is part of the geological story, by Daniel E. Willard, who tells of the ancient past of the sequoia sempervirens. Another chapter on climatic transitions and contacts by Richard Joel Russell cites rainfall data concerning the redwood forest region.

In the new book the wildlife of the region including the unique elk herd at Prairie Creek state park, in Humboldt county is described in a chapter by Aubrey Drury of the Save the redwoods league. "The Pacific Coast Ranges" is edited by Roderick Peattie, as are the other volumes in the American Mountain Series of which it is a part.

DEAL TO SMELT SIAMESE TIN IN U. S. UNDER DISCUSSION

NEW YORK, July 22—Quietly under negotiation between London and Washington is a deal, likely soon to be consummated whereby Siamese tin will be shipped directly to the US for smelting according to Business Week.

"Not yet settled, but definitely under consideration," the publication states, "is a proposal to have U. S. mining interests participate in the development of Siamese tin deposits."

GIVE SIGNALS

Neglect of proper arm signalling is a cause of many accidents, states the public safety department of National Automobile Club, in reminding motorists to give easily distinguishable arm signals, as provided in the motor vehicle code at least 50 feet before stopping or turning.

SET EXAMPLE

"Driving your car as you would have others drive, will go a long way toward creating a safer state" declares Bert Stewart, public safety director of the National Automobile Club. "It would appear natural that individuals are courteous but courtesy is freqnently lacking among motorists. By driving our highways in a spirit of cooperation each motorist can do his part toward reduction of accidents and make it smart to be safe."

Sudden stops and sudden turns are dangerous practices, declares the public safety department of National Automobile Club. Such actions wear tires excessively and cause collisions as drivers following do not always find it possible to stop in time. Also, such practices startle other drivers into committing unsafe acts.

SAN BERNARDINO REPORTS

Fishing has been rather slow in San Bernardino county although few fair catches are taken from Lake Arrowhead and some catches of the small trout in Miller Creek and lower Deep Creek.

CALAVERAS TROUT

A few limits of trout have been taken in Grouse Creek, Calaveras county. These trout averaged 6 inches and were eastern brook. Lake Alpine fishing has been slow, with Utica and Union Reservoir fair. Stanislaus river has been good this season.

FLIES SUCCESSFUL

The road to French Meadows Placer county is now open. Fishing in Duncan Creek and Middle Fork American River now at peak, with flies proving best lures.

NEVADA CITY

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
—AND—
FIFTY YEARS AGO

NEVADA CITY 75 YEARS AGO

Following are the names of pupils on the honor roll in the Quaker Hill school for the month ending July 14, 1871, Miss Mary Gregory, teacher: DeWitt Gray, Harry Jones, Will Jones, George Jones, Charlie Jones, Tena Turner, Carrie Turner and Rheda Gray.

A Democratic meeting at the court house was poorly attended. Judge Reardon presided and W. W. Cross acted as secretary.

Steve Venard former resident of this city who had been spending several months in the Eel river country returned for a visit.

The yield of the Idaho mine and mill with fifteen stamps running was about $1000 worth of gold every twenty four hours.

The Empire mill was not working as the company was engaged in sinking and developing the ledge. The profits of the North Star had been averaging $9000 per month for more than a year.

A speakers platform was erected on Broad St. near the corner of Pine for the accommodation of political speakers of both parties.

The 19th of July marked the anniversary of the fire in 1856, by which the city of Nevada was entirely destroyed. Within a few hours the entire city was a mass of ruins.

Ben Young, a colored man who had resided in this city for twenty one years died. Ben was fifty two years of age and had come from Missouri having bought his freedom from his master for $400 in 1849.

NEVADA CITY 50 YEARS AGO

The old Half Mile House, barn and corral were advertised for sale cheap. Persons interested were to see Cal R. Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hartung were parents of a new baby daughter.

The Misses Daisy and Maude Eastin were in San Francisco on a visit.

Mrs. Wm. Floyd returned from a trip to Chico where she installed the newly elected officers of the Parlor of Native Daughters.

Water rates fixed by the board of trustees for the year were: Families 25 cents per week, first class hotels, $3 per week; saloons 75 cents per week; barber shops 40 cents; drug stores 50 cents; all houses occupied by lewd women 75 cents; Chinese families for each faucet 50 cents per week; first class livery stables for water for all uses $3.50 per week: for each tap in the Catholic Cemetery $2.50 per year.

Election for chief engineer and assistant of the fire department was to be held at the city hall. J. J. Hanley of Hose Co. 1 was candidate for chief and Richard Eddy of Engine Co. No. 2 was candidate for assistant.

NAMED TO TAX COMMITTEE

Hugh D. Brown, accountant and secretary of the Grass Valley Rotary Club has been appointed to the tax committee of the Sacramento Valley Council of the State Chamber of Commerce.

George W. Pollock regional vice president of the chamber made the appointment.

Fiesta To Feature Recipe For Salmon

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25—Ever eat barbecued Chinook salmon from the Sacramento river? If not, you will have an opportunity at the Fishermen's Fiesta to be held at San Francisco's famed Fisherman's Wharf July 27.

For Sacramento river fishermen of Italian ancestry, viewing in friendly cooking competition with San Francisco's noted cooks will publicly prepare the barbecued salmon as a feature of the fiesta.

In the even you want to try cooking the salmon on your own barbecue outfit, Rosalie Abono Norton, secretary of Fishermen's Union, Local 35, of Pittsburg offers the following recipe, which has been in her family for years:

"Take garlic and parsley and cut it up fine, to make two or more cups full. Mash it together to blend well. Then add one cup oil (olive oil preferred) an one cup lemon juice. Cut up some fresh tomatoes, mix in the sauce with salt and pepper. Also salt and pepper your fish. Rub some of the barbecue sauce well into the fish on both sides. Apply oil to the grate to prevent sticking. On the last turn of the fish put the rest of your sauce, including all the vegetables o ntop. To know when it's barbecued just right, test with a toothpick or fork." Then eat.

Oregon achieved statehood February 14, 1859.

The Tahoe National Forest service reported yesterday that in the past two days a procession of violators of fire laws have filed through the office of Justice of the Peace Evelyn Bliss at Tahoe City and have been fined for carelessness.

Mrs. Blanche Caldwell of Bellville, Ill., put up $10 bail for building a camp fire without a permit. W. H. Cohick of the Cedar Flat Tract at Tahoe, paid a $25 fine for dumping hot ashes where they started a fire. J. P. Hill of Kings Beach was fined $25 for leaving a camp fire unattended. W. T. McWilliams of Lake Forest paid $25 for burning rubbish without a permit.

Tahoe forest law enforcement officers are on their toes, because a large percentage of fires thus far this season have been man caused. An especial watch is kept on all forest users to prevent fires.
